

Ramsay Australia partners with Cure Cancer to launch Comfort Pack: the gift that gives twice

29 September, 2021

The Ramsay Health Care/Cure Cancer Comfort Pack is a curated gift box filled with items that have been specifically selected to help support patients through their cancer treatment. It includes relaxing essential oils, cosy bed socks, all-natural sensitive skin products, ginger biscuits to help ease nausea and much more. As well as providing comfort to cancer patients, the Comfort Pack is the gift that gives twice – with all profits being invested back into lifesaving cancer research, in the hope that this generation will be the last to die from cancer.

“We are thrilled to collaborate with Cure Cancer and The Big Hug Box to create this gorgeous Comfort Pack which will contribute to vital cancer research that could one day eliminate cancer,” Ramsay Pharmacy’s Chief Operating Officer Michelle Lynch said.

“For anyone who has a friend or loved one experiencing cancer treatment, the Comfort Box will live up to its name and provide them with some much-needed comfort, plus it has the added bonus of funding research that could one-day cure their cancer,” Ramsay Cancer Service Line Director Sue Sinclair said.

Ramsay Health Care is heavily invested in medical research, through the Ramsay Hospital Research Foundation (RHRF).

“The profits raised will create a new $30,000 Ramsay Australia-Cure Cancer grant specifically for early-career researchers which I know will be welcome news among the medical research community”. Cure Cancer is an Australian charity that funds young researchers across all areas of cancer research and cancer types. Over the past 54 years Cure Cancer has raised $81.3 million to support early career cancer researchers, many of whom have made breakthroughs that changed the outlook for countless lives. “The Comfort Packs will not only provide relief to so many patients undergoing cancer treatment across Australia, they will also help to fund lifesaving cancer research that has the potential to have a global impact,” Cure Cancer Chief Executive Officer Nikki Kinloch said.
